Public Comment: Delaware Design Lab High School is an innovative approach to high school. Our school welcomes and celebrates student diversity. Students who once felt invisible or ignored now thrive with teachers who care about them and listen to their ideas. By allowing the reduction in numbers, teachers are able to better know our students and assist them in filling in any learning gaps while challenging them with a design thinking, project based curriculum. Although this first year has brought unexpected challenges, they have been addressed immediately. Many issues have been resolved with input from students, families, and staff. As a founding teacher, I am proud to be part of a school community that is nurturing, responsive, and committed to the best interests of our students.
