Dear Mr. Murphy,

Everybody has a dream they want to accomplish, whether it's some dream to become a famous athlete, start a business, or even just make a difference in the world. There are always steps to accomplishing a dream and my opinion being is that education is the key to dreams, success, and life. My name is Emily T. Sanches and my dream is to become an author.

Through the years of my life I have shown improvement in my education. However, when I began to attend Everett Meredith Middle School, a huge improvement was shown in my grades. Never in life have I earned as many A's until this year. I've always been a B student and just the fact that I get to hear my mom say she's proud of me, makes me thankful for my teachers. All my teachers pushed me, gave me plenty of practice, but most of all never gave up on me.

Out of all the teachers I have, there's one who always gives me advice to improve my work, explains issues well, and takes the time to read my writing. Mr. Bell is the reason why I'm getting A's in English Language Arts, which is my worse subject in school. Mr. Bell inspires me to never give up on what I chase after. As a teacher, your goal should be to give your student the education that they'll need in life. Mr. Bell is always certain that we understand a topic before moving on with his teaching. He makes sure that we're actually learning and not just faking it. Honestly, I do understand why Mr. Bell gives us ton of practice; obviously to help us with education. As they say, "practice makes perfect".

Mr. Bell is my motivation to finishing school and becoming an author. I will definitely accept any advice he gives to me and will accomplish my dream of becoming an author with his help. He represents all of the incredible teachers who inspire their students like he inspires me. He encourages all of his students to grow into a successful person. Mr. Bell is my first English Language Arts teacher that made a difference in my life and I thank him for that.

Sincerely,

Emily T. Sanches
